"Old Hundredth"

All people that on earth do dwell,
Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice;
Him serve with fear, his praise forth tell,
Come ye before him, and rejoice.

The Lord, ye know, is God indeed,
Without our aid he did us make;
We are his folk, he doth us feed,
And for his sheep he doth us take.

O enter then his gates with praise,
Approach with joy his courts unto;
Praise, laud, and bless his name always,
For it is seemly so to do.

For why? the Lord our God is good:
His mercy is for ever sure;
His truth at all times firmly stood,
And shall from age to age endure.

To Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,
The God whom heaven and earth adore,
From men and from the angel host
Be praise and glory evermore. Amen.

This setting of "Old Hundredth" is by Ralph Vaughan Williams.
It was composed for use at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II

Stand, Columbia!

Haydn

The audience is requested to rise and join the choir

Mother, stayed on rock eternal,
Crowned and set upon a height,
Glorified by Light supernal —
In thy radiance we see light.
Torch, thy children's lamps to kindle,
Beacon-star, to cheer and guide,
Stand, Columbia! Alma Mater —
Through the storms of Time abide!

PULITZER PRIZES

Established 1915

IN JOURNALISM

For disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, a gold medal.

Awarded to the Arkansas Gazette of Little Rock, Arkansas, for demonstrating the highest qualities of civic leadership, journalistic responsibility and moral courage in the face of great public tension during the school integration crisis of 1957. The newspaper's fearless and completely objective news coverage, plus its reasoned and moderate policy, did much to restore calmness and order to an overwrought community, reflecting great credit on its editors and its management.

For a distinguished example of local reporting in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, the test being the quality of local news stories written under the pressure of edition time, $1,000.

Awarded to the Fargo (N.D.) Forum for its swift, vivid and detailed news and picture coverage of a tornado which struck Fargo on June 20. Proceeding under considerable difficulty and overcoming many handicaps, a small but skilled staff put out a complete tornado edition within five hours after the disaster.

For a distinguished example of local reporting in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, in which the pressure of edition time is not a factor, written in the form of a single article or a series, due consideration being given to the initiative and resourcefulness and to the constructive purpose of the writer, $1,000.

Awarded to GEORGE BEVERIDGE of the Evening Star, Washington, D.C., for his excellent thought-provoking series, "Metro, City of Tomorrow," describing in depth the urban problems of Washington, D.C., which stimulated widespread public consideration of these problems and encouraged further studies by both public and private agencies.

For a distinguished example of reporting on national affairs in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, $1,000.

(For 1958, two prizes of $1,000 each were given in this category as follows:)

Awarded to RELMAN MORIN of the Associated Press for his dramatic and incisive eyewitness report of mob violence on September 23, 1957, during the integration crisis at the Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Awarded to CLARK MOLLENHOFF of the Des Moines Register and Tribune for his persistent inquiry into labor racketeering, which included investigatory reporting of wide significance.

For a distinguished example of reporting on international affairs, including United Nations correspondence, in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, $1,000.

Awarded to The New York Times for its distinguished coverage of foreign news, which was characterized by admirable initiative, continuity and high quality during the year.

For distinguished editorial writing in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, the test of excellence being clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning, and power to influence public opinion in what the writer conceives to be the right direction, due account being taken of the whole volume of the editorial writer's work during the year, $1,000.

Awarded to HARRY S. ASHMORE, executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette for the forcefulness, dispassionate analysis and clarity of his editorials on the school integration conflict in Little Rock.

For a distinguished example of a cartoonist's work in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, the determining qualities being that the cartoon shall embody an idea made clearly apparent, shall show good drawing and striking pictorial effect, and shall be intended to be helpful to some commendable cause of public importance, due account being taken of the whole volume of the artist's work during the year, $1,000.

Awarded to BRUCE M. SHANKS of the Buffalo (N.Y.) Evening News for his cartoon, "The Thinker," published on August 10, 1957, depicting the dilemma of union membership when confronted by racketeering leaders in some labor unions.

For an outstanding example of news photography as exemplified by a news photograph or photographs in a United States newspaper, published daily, Sunday or at least once a week during the year, $1,000.

Special Citation: Awarded to WALTER LIPPMAN, national syndicated columnist of the New York Herald Tribune, for the wisdom, perception and high sense of responsibility with which he has commented for many years on national and international affairs.

IN LETTERS

For distinguished fiction published in book form during the year by an American author, preferably dealing with American life, $500.

Awarded to A Death in the Family, by JAMES AGEE [McDOWELL-OBOLSKY].

For the American play, preferably original in its source and dealing with American life, which shall represent in marked fashion the educational value and power of the stage, $500.

Awarded to Look Homeward, Angel, by KETTI FRINGS [produced at the Barrymore].

For a distinguished book of the year upon the history of the United States, $500.

Awarded to Banks and Politics in America—from the Revolution to the Civil War, by BRAY HAMMOND [Princeton University Press].

For a distinguished American biography or autobiography teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people, illustrated by an eminent example, $500.

Awarded to George Washington, Volumes I-VI, by DOUGLAS SOUTHALL FREEMAN, and Volume VII, written by JOHN ALEXANDER CARROLL and MARY WELLS ASHWORTH after Dr. Freeman's Sons] in 1953 [Charles Scribner's Sons].

Historical Note by the Curator of Columbiana

The following notes on the significance of the academic procession are presented for those who may be attending the occasion for the first time.

COMMENCEMENT AT COLUMBIA has been one of the regular features of New York life since 1758 and has survived seven wars, a revolution, frequent shifts of locale, and numerous metamorphoses of the ceremonies themselves. At the first commencement of King's College, held in St. George's Chapel, Beekman Street, June 21, 1758, seven men were graduated with the A.B. degree and four honorary degrees were conferred. For more than a century most of the graduates participated in the exercises, delivering an oration or defending a thesis. During the pre-Revolutionary period, commencement was held in Trinity Church or one of its chapels, after the procession had passed through the streets from the college building on what is now Park Place. Following the revival of the College as Columbia in 1784, commencement was held in various downtown churches and halls. During most of Columbia's Forty-ninth Street years (1857-1897), commencement took place at the Academy of Music at Fourteenth Street and Irving Place, followed by two years at the Metropolitan Opera House and seven years at Carnegie Hall. Since 1898 commencement has been held on the campus at Morning-side: at first in the University Gymnasium, and since 1926 outdoors in South Court except in the years 1928, 1935, and 1943, when rain necessitated a return to the Gymnasium. In Provincial days the Royal Governor and the members of His Majesty's Council frequently attended commencement, and in 1789 at St. Paul's Chapel on Broadway at Fulton Street, President Washington, Vice President Adams, and the members of Congress attended the exercises. Although most of the commencements in the intervening years were attended by various distinguished guests, it was not until late in the 1890's that the custom was established of inviting the recipients of honorary degrees to receive them in person.

The exercises were conducted almost entirely in Latin through the King's College period, and for another century classical orations were never absent from the program, but in 1902 Latin finally disappeared.

Commencement was not held in 1759 because there was only one candidate* for graduation, in 1775 because of the president's absence in England, and from 1776 through 1785 because of the Revolution and the suspension of the College during most of that time; the War of 1812 occasioned the omission of one commencement. The last one to be omitted was in 1832 during a cholera epidemic.

THE ACADEMIC COSTUME worn now is a direct survival from medieval days, possibly as early as the twelfth century, when a warm gown and hood were a real boon to cleric and scholar in unheated buildings. In America the students of King's College appear to have been the first to wear caps and gowns daily while in residence, a custom undoubtedly introduced by President Myles Cooper, an Oxonian.

According to an intercollegiate system of academic costume established in 1894, Bachelors' gowns are made of worsted stuff with pointed sleeves; Masters' gowns are made of silk with long closed sleeves; Doctors' gowns are made of silk with round, open sleeves. All American academic gowns are black. Bachelors' and Masters' gowns are untrimmed; Doctors' gowns are faced down the front with black velvet, with bars of the same across the sleeves, but the facing and cross-bars may be of velvet of the same color as the border of the hood. Hoods are made of the same material as the gown and are always black; the length of the Bachelors' hood is three-fourths that of the Masters' and Doctors' hoods, which are not to exceed four feet in length; the Doctors' hood has panels at the sides. Hoods are lined with the official colors of the university: at Columbia these are light blue and white; the interior of the hood is treated as an inverted shield, lined with light blue and bearing a white chevron. The border of the hood, which is not to exceed six inches in width, may be of silk, satin, or velvet, and the color indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains: arts and letters, including journalism, white; theology, scarlet; law, purple; medicine, green; philosophy, dark blue; science, yellow; architecture and the fine arts, brown; music, pink; dentistry, lilac; engineering, orange; pharmacy, olive; business, drab; library service, lemon; education, light blue; international affairs, peacock blue; social work, citron. The black mortarboard cap is standard in America; Doctors may wear a gold tassel, but all others must be black. University trustees wear Doctors' gowns during their term of office, together with the hood pertaining to the highest degree which each holds.

THE MACE, at present a symbol of authority, had its origin as a medieval weapon. At that time it consisted of a stout club ending in a metal ball, usually spiked.

The Mace carried in the Columbia procession, which is adorned by a king's crown, was presented to the University by the late Judge John Munro Woolsey, LL.B., '01, LL.D., '29.
